Introduction

In order to more effectively address the health needs of Erie County residents, community partners and stakeholders have joined to form a collaborative health improvement team with the Erie County Department of Health as the lead agency.

Using the results of the community health needs assessment, the group has focused on four strategic health issues, their corresponding priority health indicators, and the seven overarching challenges identified for Erie County. The strategic health issues are lifestyle behavior change, chronic disease prevention and control, cancer prevention and early detection, and mental health. The overarching challenges are issues that impact the health of Erie County residents and should be considered in any community-based health action plan. They are poverty, disparities, the aging population, medical and dental professional shortage, health-related transportation, health literacy, and lack of a central source of information and referral. This is represented in the community health blueprint below.

Community Health Improvement Plan

The Community Health Improvement Plan (CHIP) is a blueprint for achieving improved community health. It begins with community partners and stakeholders joining in a collaborative dialogue to develop goals and strategies for the strategic issues identified in the community health needs assessment. The priority indicators and overarching challenges are used as guides. These final goals and strategies describe what the group wants to achieve and how they plan on doing it. The results are action plans that use evidence based programs to provide measurable and effective interventions within the community. The overarching goal of the CHIP is to establish a unified health improvement plan to transform Erie County into a “Community of Wellness”.

Four task forces, based on the four strategic issues, were established. They are: Lifestyle Behavior Change Task Force, Chronic Disease Task Force, Mental Health Task Force, and Cancer Prevention and Control Task Force. Focus areas for each of these task force groups follows.
